Atty. Gen. Morgan Alleges a Combine in Court Action

(By Associated Press)

Madison.—An action to break up an alleged combination in restraint of trade of tobacco product manufacturers and wholesalers was started by Attorney General William J. Morgan in Milwaukee circuit court Friday. Under the anti-trust law passed by the last legislature and, according to the attorney general, will be followed by others within a short time.

The Louisville Tobacco company, American Tobacco company, Schneller Tobacco company, H. S. Goodrich company, Lewis & Clark company, Peckarsky Brothers company, Cavatta Tobacco company, Stein Brothers Tobacco company, Shook and Hargest and the Association of Wholesale Tobaccoists.

"This combination of tobacco manufacturers and wholesalers was organized to drive out of business and ruin all jobbers who did not join in their price fixing agreement," G. F. Clifford, special assistant attorney general, said in the complaint. "The action is dangerous because back of the jobbers are the big tobacco companies ready to go the limit on price maintenance."

The attempt on the part of manufacturers and jobbers to increase the prices on tobacco to the consumer and has resulted in a curtailment of purchase and manufacture with resulting suffering by tobacco growers. Mr. Clifford declared.

"Largely successful," Attorney General Morgan, in a statement, said the so-called tobacco combination had been successful in increasing market and eliminate competition and has been largely successful.

"Their price fixing combination was only broken up by the action of the state," he said, "but, by controlling distribution, it largely eliminated competition in buying and Wisconsin tobacco growers have suffered."

The action was made by Attorney General Morgan to United States Attorney General Daugherty at Washington, with the suggestion that the state receive federal cooperation to secure relief from what is said to be a price fixing combination.

Labor Board Takes Full Power Over Rail Fight for Both Rates and Wages

(By Associated Press)

STRIKE LOOMS AS CONFERENCE FAILS TO BRING PEACE

NO BASIS FOR SETTLEMENT SUGGESTED, SAY UNIONS.

PLANS ARE LAID

Roads Prepare to Meet Oct. 30 Crisis; Brotherhoods Marshal Forces.

Railroad strike developments Friday were: Chicago railroad labor board, having failed in conference with brotherhood leaders, sends report to President Harding. Eleven "standard" unions are meeting in effort to reach agreement on strike stand.

Managers of western roads discuss plans to keep roads in operation.

Washington.—Government officials await report from railroad labor board before taking next step to prevent walkout.

Cleveland.—Brotherhood chiefs return to continue strike plans.

St. Louis.—Managers of southern western roads meet to arrange program for operation of roads.

San Antonio.—Six hundred trainmen on International and Great Northern railroad prepare to walk out at noon Saturday.

Chicago.—The United States railroad labor board having admitted failure in its attempt to prevent a railroad strike, the board today with heads of the "Big Five" railroad unions, labor chiefs Friday were pushing plans for a general walkout, beginning Oct. 30, and of the plans for carrying out the strike at double time in preparation to combat the proposed strike.

The conference Thursday between the railroad labor board and the five union heads brought no results, except an admission from the board that the first effort of a governmental agency to avert a strike had failed completely.

The board's action was met by the union chiefs that the meeting resulted only in "the labor board being convinced that the unions really mean to strike."

A report of the conference was telegraphed to President Harding at Washington and both the labor leaders and board members seemed inclined to feel that the next step would be taken. Several railroad union men said that it looked as if only the government itself could prevent the strike.

Mr. Stone, of the engineers, Mr. Loe of the trainmen and Mr. Carter of the firemen were in Cleveland Friday, meeting with their executive committee to complete strike plans, while Mr. Cushman of the switchmen was directing activities in the switchmen's unions from Buffalo, and Mr. Sheppard of the conductors was in Cedar Rapids, preparing the final details for his organization. The executive committee of all five unions will meet in Cleveland Monday.

On the carriers' part, heads of western roads met in Chicago in a conference announced for the purpose of forming plans to meet a strike, while a similar meeting of the roads was held in St. Paul.

Chicago.—The United States railroad labor board Friday, backed by all the authority which the government can place at its disposal, called the railroads of the country and the five big unions to appear here next week and solemnly warned the unions not to strike until the board has heard their grievances and rendered a decision.

The board's action practically means there will be no strike Oct. 30, unless the unions should choose to defy openly the government for status quo on the railroads, which will be rendered by the board before that date.

The board passed a resolution calling the big four brotherhoods, the switchmen's union and all railroads named in the wage reduction order of July 1 to appear before the board next Wednesday at 10 a. m., that the board may determine whether or not the unions are violating the wage reduction order.

Takes Over Dispute. "The board also said that, insofar as the threatened strike is a result of a dispute between the carriers and their employees concerning wages, rules and working conditions, 'this board hereby assumes jurisdiction of the dispute on the statutory ground that it is likely substantially to interrupt commerce.'"

Meanwhile both parties to the dispute are warned to maintain the status quo on the properties of the carriers. The action by the board followed a conference which began at 10 a. m.

U. S. Authorities Ready. While the transportation act gives the board no power to enforce its decisions, it is understood last week's conference between President Harding, members of the board, Attorney General Daugherty, Secretary of War Weeks and Interstate Commerce commission placed all the departments of government in accord as to what shall be done if either the carriers or the unions refuse to abide by the board's order. It has been pointed out, the board will under the act have no power to enforce its decisions, but the board apparently has evaded that difficulty by its reference to the conference held a week ago Friday night by the carriers and the board.

The board assumes jurisdiction because that conference failed to reach a decision and a dispute is pending as a result.

Assumes Jurisdiction. There has been some debate as to whether the board could intervene and summon the roads and unions to a hearing prior to the actual walkout on the roads, but the board apparently has evaded that difficulty by its reference to the conference held a week ago Friday night by the carriers and the board.

The board assumes jurisdiction because that conference failed to reach a decision and a dispute is pending as a result.

Will Run Trains If Given Protection. Houston, Tex.—"We will run trains on the International and Great Northern and other roads, if given protection," declared Thornton Day, executive officer of the International and Great Northern, Friday morning, commenting on the announcement that the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, embracing the brakemen and switchmen of the system, would walkout at noon Saturday.

"This is a strike against the United States government, the labor board and accordingly the public," he added.

G. A. R. POST HERE IS 40 YEARS OLD

Reminiscences Mark Program in Celebration of Anniversary.

Forty years of fraternalism growing out of comradeship formed during the Civil war was reviewed by surviving members who gathered at East Side Odd Fellows' hall at 2300 Friday afternoon to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the organization of the W. H. Sargent Post No. 29 of the Grand Army of the Republic. A supper will be served by the Women's Relief Corps.

Reminiscences of the days of '61 were recalled, and tribute was paid to the departed comrades. The history of the organization was read by C. J. Shottle, today 77 years old, who enlisted as a member of the Twelfth Illinois Infantry at Freeport, Ill., when he was 20. He, together with Charles Reicher, also of Janesville, are the only survivors of the war. Members of the local G. A. R. post when it was first formed.

Reviewing the history of the post, Mr. Shottle said that it was organized 40 years ago Friday with 40 members and today has 40 members. The city hall then was where the west side fire station now stands. A comrade named Fisher, from Milwaukee, organized the post. The first meeting place was over what is now the city hall, and from there they moved to a building on the bridge, which was destroyed by fire. They then moved to the third floor of the I. O. O. F. hall, then to the city hall, and finally to the First National Bank, later to Ziegler's clothing store block and came back to the I. O. O. F. hall 20 years ago.

"We did not organize as soon after the close of the Civil war as some did, nor as the veterans of the World War did," said Mr. Shottle. "It was 10 years after the close of the Civil war that we organized, and perhaps we would not have done so then but for the funeral services for President Garfield in September, 1881, we tried to get the comrades to turn out to attend the funeral but failed. Then we organized."

Had 40 Commanders. "We did not think of a pension at that time and in fact no one could get a pension unless he was badly disabled. The first general pension law was passed in 1890, 25 years after the close of the war. Many soldiers did not apply for pensions until several years after that, because a man had to be badly disabled to receive one and then it was only $2 to $5 a month."

During the period of 40 years, the local post has had about 33 post commanders. The present one is E. T. Winslow, 816 East Main street, still holding the post. In this time there have been 330 members on the rolls, of whom 245 have died and today there is a membership of 40. Forty-five men were dropped from the rolls or transferred.

Four Chicago Students Killed in Auto Crash

Millford, Ill.—A string of box cars, standing on a siding and obscuring a view of the track, was the explanation given Friday by Louis Roberts, Chicago, for the automobile crash with a Chicago and Eastern Illinois train which resulted in the death of four university students and the serious injury of one.

Roberts said that on Thursday he and the other boys "chipped in" and bought the car, that they might drive to Princeton in time to see the Chicago-Princeton football game Saturday. He said they intended to drive day and night to make the 800 miles in time.

The list of dead include Thomas Monahan, Chicago; Harold Skinner, Oak Park, Ill.; Stanwood Johnson, Minneapolis; and Herschel Hopkins, from Oregon.

PROPERTY OWNERS

MUST LAY LATERALS

Public notices are being posted by the city clerk advising property owners on the following streets to lay water, sewer and gas laterals from main to curb-line within the next 10 to 15 days: On Ringold, from Ruger to Racine; South Second, Ringold to Racine; Sherman, Racine to Milton; and Fourth avenue, main to Bluff. Plans are on file in the city clerk's office. Unless the work is done by the property owner, the city will do it and charge it up as a special assessment. The work is ordered now so the streets may be paved next year.

Build a Community Center and Convention Hall for the city for athletic, conventions, musical, social, civic meetings, and have a place to belong to the whole city. This is also a part of a program to provide music and entertainment for the people of the city. Complete the city plan. Make more small parks and playgrounds and provide at least one large park where the whole people may camp for auto tourists coming to Janesville for passing through.
Make a permanent memorial for the soldiers of the World War, suitable and adequate, and preserve the same as a monument to the city and all other American wars in a public place.
Finish the paving of Janesville streets and sidewalks.
Make all main highways into city of concrete to connect with good pavements in Janesville.
Keep the city looking bright and clean with paint and the streets free from filth.
Either build a new hotel or increase the facilities of the present hotels as to take care of the traveling public and be able to handle conventions.
Finish the high school at an early date and give the children proper educational facilities.

WHAT ARE WE TEACHING OUR YOUTH?
The controversy raised by the Rev. Herbert Noonan, president of Marquette University, when he charged that we were teaching atheistic doctrines in the state university, should result in a real investigation as to just what we are teaching and just what the text books emanating from the university of Wisconsin and other higher colleges do teach. The Rev. Mr. Noonan will perhaps lay himself open to the charge of being inattentive to the attack from religious reasons but that should not at all enter into the investigation of the facts. That is no argument. We have a book by Prof. Edwin A. Ross which certainly does teach some pretty strong things about eugenics and selection in family. Another book to be found in the library of the Janesville Public schools has a chapter that calls attention to the possibility of the time when to keep up the population, we shall be obliged to raise children without the need of marriage ceremonies.

What are we doing in the insidious teaching of all the sort of anomic socialism, both Fabian and Marxian? We are just now in a campaign to support the American Constitutional League to teach real Americanism and combat socialism. The leader of all socialistic movements to install the dictatorship of the proletariat, the destruction of all property and the elevation of the "lower classes" by destroying the rich and educated, is Karl Marx. Yet we find Marx quoted in text books used in Janesville high school as an authority on economic problems.

It may be that the quotations are not in themselves harmful, but to quote at all from a man who would destroy the very fabric of civilization, and whose doctrine carried out would make a shambles of the American nation, is to take altogether too many chances.
Just what do we teach in the university? Just what point of view do we get in the public schools? We know all the ideals in regard to earlier American history have been crushed by Mr. Muzzy's history and all public men, with few exceptions, were racists, according to the same author. Let that go, but we do protest at least mildly, with having our ideals in religion and political economy smashed by an atheistic person like Karl Marx. The best example of what Marx means is the Russian bolshevism. Atheism and socialism are hand in hand friends, walking the same path, riding the same horse, ending in voiceless despair. We do not want them in the university nor in the public schools.

They call them salad girls because they have on so much French dressing.

THERE OUGHT TO BE A PUBLIC GUARDIAN.
Apparently there should be a guardian appointed for the investor. When the German mark was selling around 7 cents, many millions of dollars of good American money and Liberty bonds were invested in the paper frauds. The estimated loss today on the investment is above $200,000,000 to the Americans who fell for the schemes. So long ago as last June, the Gazette called attention to the danger in these investments. The paper money of Poland and of Austria, the paper ruble of Russia, are all worthless. Exchange in German marks show declines during each week and it cannot be but a question of time when they will reach the zero point. In the meantime $400,000,000 of money, that here at home would have been earning good rates for the owners, have been lost. The speculator could easily sell these marks and take little risk of fraud charges ever being made against him. Now we are asked to buy bonds of European cities bearing high rates of interest and which are declared to be very questionable.

The mark is fiat money, and in time will be about the same sort of a curiosity, sold at ten cents or more per million, as now is the money of Chihuahua issued by Pancho Villa. Hard-up America has spent around a billion dollars gambling in these worthless stocks, schemes of individuals in which it is always a sure-thing for the promoter, and then we do it all over again. That is why there is need of two essential officials; one a fool-killer, frequently talked about but never officially designated, and a conservator of investments—a sort of advisory clearing house where one may go with investment troubles. So far, the nearest to this is the banker who has saved many a man from the poor house by strong arming him out of an investment in something about as fancy as a German mark.

When C. Harold Wills set out to make Maryville, Mich., a model city—the best in the world built by design and conducted on the highest business principles.

A Playground for Congressmen
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington, D. C.—Official Washington is at last going to become acquainted all-round. Army chiefs are going to hobnob with congressmen. Secretaries of departments will chat amicably with senators' wives. What is even more significant, senators will meet representatives and each will, perhaps, learn something of the other's work and his point of view. Appreciation is going to take the place of antagonism between the branches of government.

This millennium-like situation is to be brought about by the Congressional Country club which will be opened about the first of December. The need for such a club to promote better acquaintance is real. When congressional committees are in department-officials to explain departmental matters at hearings, the atmosphere is apt to be slightly chilly. The congressman, with his eye on the Federal budget, suspects the department chief of wanting more money or clerks than is necessary. The official testifying at the end of the committee table looks around and wishes that these lawmakers would have to run his organization for a week. They'd show more intelligence about it if they did.

The Congressional Country club is to break the tradition that different branches of government speak different languages. On the golf links, in the swimming pool, on horseback, or around the open fire, statesmen who have glared at each other may, soon be swapping experiences and other point of view. The Capital has fewer jokes.

The new club is needed in Washington from another point of view. Almost any city of its size, Washington lists of the three large clubs are always long. It is said that the city could easily build up a new club from these lists alone.

The congressional club with its prospective membership of 1,500 will partly relieve this tense situation. All congressmen and their wives, department heads, and accredited press representatives will be eligible. A few hand-picked outsiders will also be admitted on recommendation of members. On the whole, though, it is to be a congressional club with only congressmen for its officers and board of directors.

The congressmen's new playground consists of more than 400 acres of valuable land nine miles out of Washington. A big, fourteen-room country home, now on the grounds, is to be the clubhouse until a new one can be built. Bungalows are to be constructed, too, on the property, for members who may wish to rent suburban homes and be close to the golf course.

One alluring feature that is played up by the members who are starting the club is the scenery. The privileges of looking out on the historic Potomac and the Virginia hills is alone said to be worth the initiation fee. Moreover, the highway that runs by the grounds is the old Braddock Road on which Braddock is said to have marched with George Washington before the Revolution.

With this picturesque background, the club hopes to develop its property into an estate that will compare favorably with the best country clubs anywhere.

Golf enthusiasts have pronounced the prospects for a golf course unusual. Daveyux Emmet, the well known golf architect, may lay out the course. When Mr. Emmet was shown the grounds he was so impressed with the golfing possibilities that he went home and wrote the following, which sounds like a testimonial, though it isn't meant for one. "In all my experience," wrote Mr. Emmet, "I have never seen a finer property for the purpose, with such a variety of contours."

The country club is one of a number of projects which have been attempted to brighten the lives of members of congress.

A congressman has to spend almost all of his time in Washington nowadays. Once a representative of the people could be reasonably sure of a long session and a short session at set intervals. Now, extra sessions follow so close on the heels of adjournment that the lawmaker has time only to snatch a few days vacation.

Getting back home is more a duty than a pleasure at that. The politician must keep his voters reminded that he is still struggling valiantly for his country, even if his name isn't in the papers so often as might be wished. After this duty is hastily performed, the breathless lawmaker is back at it again. Lawmaking has become a year-round job. And as the members begin to realize that they are not camping here for a few months anymore, they begin to agitate for some of the comforts of home.

This country club has so many members promised that it seems sure of success. The list of members already includes Secretaries Hoover, Denby, and Mellon; William Burns of the secret service; Frank White, treasurer of the United States; and John Barrett, president of the civil service commission.

Another, less promising project, is a hotel for congressmen. This is a needed institution, no doubt, but it depends on a bill to bring into existence. Anything of the sort that has been legislated over is almost surely doomed from the start.

The hotel for homeless congressmen was suggested as a means of relieving statesmen of their housing troubles, so that they could concentrate on affairs of state. It was to offer them a home conveniently close to the capitol, at a reasonable rental.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST
THE PARTY.
It may be I'm old fashioned an' 'my style is rather plain. But I'd like to see the parties of my boyhood once again.
We didn't have 'em often, an' they lacked the pomp an' show. Of the gay an' brilliant gatherings which this age has come to know.
But they had a thrill about 'em, an' whatever folk might say.
The world lost something wholesome when the custom passed away.

Our notion of a party was a family affair. With all the aunts and cousins and the uncles gathered there.
An' the young folks mickin' merry an' the lovers whispering.
An' the blushing of excuses when we'd ask Aunt Lili to sing.
An' the silence an' the wonder an' as we heard some friend recite.
To our constant admiration, "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight."

Now the family seldom gathers as of old it used to do.
We have changed our old-time gladness for the customs of the new.
An' I can't help feelin' sorry, for whatever folks may claim.
The old-time family party never brought regret or shame.
Though I can't know how to say it, still somehow it seems to me.
What we really need are parties of the kind that used to be.

A BALD STATEMENT.
The' my hair is going' thither.
And my forehead's getting big.
I'll face the world with shiny pate
Before I'll wear a wig.

The' winter's blasts chill my poor bean
And make me shake and jig.
I'll bear it, tho' I may not grin,
I shall not wear a wig.

Let snappers shun the male bald dome,
I do not care a fig.
I'll live in single cussedness,
BUT I WILL NOT WEAR A WIG!

Who's Who Today.
BASIL MILES.
Basil Miles, who has been named as secretary to the American delegation to the conference on the limitation of armaments, has been active in the state department for the conference and has had considerable experience in statesmanship.
He was born in Philadelphia in 1877 and is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and of Oxford University. In 1905 he was appointed private secretary to the American ambassador to Russia and three years later was appointed third secretary to the embassy there.
He left the diplomatic service in 1918, but re-entered it in 1919, when he was appointed special assistant to the ambassador in Russia. He was also attached to the American embassy at Berlin and once held an appointment in the postoffice department.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS.
The Bright Side of the Picture.
So much is being said about the vast body of the unemployed that it might be well to call attention to the other side of the picture. According to reports to the Department of Labor and other Government agencies, 12,000,000 men are now on industrial payroll. They are now receiving approximately $1,000,000,000 a month in wages. The average pay of the industrial worker today is approximately $1000 a year. The average pay of the industrial worker before the war was a little over $800 a year, which shows that wages have not descended to pre-war levels. The average day wage of the industrial worker today is approximately $3.50. Common unskilled labor earns less than that. The average day wage of the common unskilled laborer is $1 an hour. When these wages have been reduced in accord with reductions in prices of commodities, the unemployment problem will disappear. —Topeka State Journal.

LOOKING BACKWARD.
FORTY YEARS AGO.
Oct. 21, 1881.—An adjourned meeting of the council was held last night. The members present visited fire station and inspected one of the engines, which was in bad shape. They decided to buy a new one. The time of the meeting was changed from 8 o'clock to 7:30. Soldiers and sailors of the city will meet again tonight to perfect an organization.

THIRTY YEARS AGO.
Oct. 21, 1891.—Archbishop Katerer will be here tomorrow to confirm large classes at the St. Mary's and St. Patrick's churches. The Game warden is investigating conditions at Lake Koshong. It is said that hunters, among them Janesville men, are killing ducks and shipping them out of the state.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.
Oct. 21, 1901.—The 20th anniversary of the founding of Yale is being celebrated at New Haven. The celebration opened with religious services this morning. Gov. La Follette was at the head of the parade of about 1000 men. The Gideons closed their convention in this city last night with a large union service at the Congregational church.

TEN YEARS AGO.
Oct. 21, 1911.—There have been several burglar scares in the third ward lately. A man has been seen prowling about some of the houses with a ladder and the police were called to scare him away. A number of places, including the Bank of Janesville, have been burglarized last night also, but little of value secured. Work on the pavement on Academy street will soon start.

THE JOYS OF KARRELLING
Today a reader occupies the pulpit. Dear Dr. Brady:
Your recent article on sick headaches (migraine) and their handling caused me to bear testimony to you. I have found. For many years I have been a sufferer from sick headaches or migraine seizures and have tried all the well known remedies without success.

Having an inherited tendency to neural overstrain, and a very strong personal dislike for it, I decided to try the Karrell regimen for relieving my headache. I am glad to say that I have found a relief from my headache and I wish to share my satisfaction and delight with all others afflicted as I was.
The first two days knocked off five dashed pounds and now that I am moving normal weight the reduction is less rapid—about two pounds a week. I Karrell every other day, and enjoy it. For those who hesitate about the personal discomfort or the dread of hunger pangs, let me say the frequency of the Karrell "meals" prevents all discomforts of that sort. I am actually feeling better, and on my Karrell days have more pep and capacity for pleasure and work than I have known for many years. Long walks and strenuous exercises are impossible for me on account of my headache. Since I have been Karrelling I have had no headaches.
To have accomplished two such splendid results in two absolute weeks is a great thing to record in this sensible procedure to the consideration of all who are afflicted with sick headaches and overweight.

Sincerely yours,
MRS. W. W. F.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Mental Depression.
I have nervous indigestion. Should I have the old stomps of teeth extracted?—K. C. C.
Answer—The title you give your trouble is a misnomer. Indigestion is a mental depression for it really signifies nothing but a mental depression. I understand that there is something definitely in the matter. We doctors speak of "indigestion" when we are at a loss to find the actual diagnosis, and we call it "nervous" when we and the patient are worrying about it. Your doctor and dentist should consult together about what is left of your teeth, and decide how many, if any, stumps should be pulled out. An arrangement between doctor and dentist. I mean as to the decision whether to extract. Often it is better to leave them.

Dinner Stories
In a London club, when the Chinese minister happened to be present, a rather facetious speaker referred to the position of women in China and how they were debased from so many of the privileges of men. He meant no ill, but what he said was indiscreet and led to a momentary but embarrassing silence. The minister did not speak for a while, but presently, during a pause.

Telling Why Business Can't Afford More War
Is it to be world peace or world poverty?—no middle course. The powers have reached the point where the cry of spending for arms must stop or civilization will become insolvent.
France keeps an army of 140,000 men on the Rhine. This affects your neighborhood almost as directly as if that army were paid out of the Treasury in Washington.

The world is the American market. While that market is bankrupt, while the money you need is spent on war, how can we have real prosperity in your business.
The $1,500,000 interest due the United States every day on the loans to its late allies cannot be paid while the nations live in fear of a new attack. And the necessity of keeping up big war machines as safeguards against further aggression.

A committee of big, representative business men went to Europe and investigated this whole subject for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The report of this committee is of vital interest to every American. You can get a free copy of this valuable document from our Washington Information Bureau.

FIND NEW FACTS ON MOUNTAIN GEOLOGY
[By Associated Press.]
Christiansburg.—After explorations lasting two months, the Norwegian expedition to Nova Zembla, headed by Prof. Holsthaug of the University of Christiania, has returned with a mass of new facts.
The main features of the geological structure of the range of mountains in Nova Zembla were ascertained and traces of land vegetation and fresh water fish dating from the later Devonian age were found, showing the explorers affirm that the great North Atlantic mainland of the Devonian age once extended as far as Nova Zembla.
Twelve ocean level marks subsequent to the glacial age were discovered and sea shells were found up to heights of 250 yards above sea level. The expedition also collected a vast amount of interesting specimens of animal life including new species of birds and fresh water fish.

Goes Farther
A can of Calumet Baking Powder will make more pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins, etc. than a can of most other brands.
It lasts longer—goes farther because it contains more than the ordinary leavening strength—therefore you use less.
When a recipe calls for two teaspoons of baking powder, use two level teaspoons of Calumet, the results will always be the same—perfectly raised bakings—remember this when you buy baking powder and don't forget that Calumet is the economic buy because it goes farther.
A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 oz. Some baking powders come in 12 oz. instead of 16 oz. cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

The stars incline, but do not compel.
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1921.
This is not an important day, according to astrology. Friday, in the morning, is in a strongly malefic aspect and late in the evening the Sun is friendly.
Under this rule irritability and inclination toward quarrelsomeness appears, so that extra self-control is enjoined.
The sway is not encouraging to engineers and contractors who may meet many obstacles despite improved labor conditions.
There is a sign inimical to world peace and certainly indicative of activity on the part of military men in the United States.
Shipping troubles again are fore-shadowed and there may be strikes as well as accidents at sea.
The stars are most menacing to the American merchant marine, which will not prosper until an extraordinary international situation now indicated suddenly develops.
The evening of this day will be a most auspicious time to entertain persons of importance in the financial or political world.
Persons were most fortunate if it should be met to avoid quarrels or litigation in the coming year. Those born in the morning will be unusually happy.
Children born on this day are likely to be excitable and quick-tempered but capable of accomplishing much.

"The Love Pendulum"

By MARION RUBINCAM

THE MAD WHIRL
For a long while we did seem to have found the happiness that some of us had been missing all these long months. For a while everything went the way we wanted it.

Winthrop's mother kept her promise and advanced him enough money to purchase an interest in his firm. This made our income sufficient to cover all the expenses of our apartment and to allow for the extravagant method of living that seemed to please Winthrop.

I was sufficiently rested to stana through life we were suddenly plunged into without getting the sickening little pain in my shoulders that I had carried almost all the winter before.

The saddest part of the new arrangement was that I had to give the baby back to Mrs. Anderson; but at least I had the satisfaction of knowing that the child had stored up sufficient health under my care in the summer to start her safely on the winter months.

Mrs. Anderson was almost pathetically grateful for the purchase of the baby. It never seemed to occur to her to whom motherhood was only an added burden, that the greatest joy of my summer had been given me.

Winthrop was light-hearted as a boy once we were back in the city. He took every day like a new adventure. One day he came home with a new car, a very smart motor car, and for weeks afterwards he was purchasing new little luxuries to be put in the machine.

He decided that it was too much trouble to drive himself, so he hired a chauffeur. He even wanted to move to a more expensive apartment, but I managed to stop him on this one point. In spite of our increased income, I knew we could not stand too much expense.

September and October passed, and the so-called social season was in full swing. My aunt came back to town and opened up her house, and my father arrived from Canada with new plans for a winter's trip to South Africa.

"Don't you ever want to stay home?" I asked him one afternoon when he dropped in for tea.

"What a little home body you are, Connie," he said, with his indulgent paternal smile. "I am always at home because my home is the whole world."

Winthrop was taking all this in easily. He had, at last, the satisfaction of knowing that my husband was temperamental better suited to my own family than I was. If that could be called a satisfaction.

My father loaned far back in his arm chair, his feet stretched out towards the fireplace, a cigarette in a jeweled holder hanging limply between his long white fingers. He affected a carelessness, a negligence, that in most men would have been slovenly. But with him, groomed and dressed, he was only becoming. It was a pose with him, so was his Bohemianism; but he was one of the rare people who could carry it off.

Winthrop was too near the real Bohemian to be able to do it.

"I shall hire a small yacht at Cape Town," Father went on. "It will be ideal cruising in that district this winter."

"I'd like a private yacht too," Win said suddenly. "But I suppose we can't have one yet. Think of the parties we could take out on short cruises, Connie!"

"I'd rather stay on land," I answered promptly.

But this I knew was the wrong thing to say. So I changed my tactics at once.

That evening we went to a very elaborate dinner in honor of Nedda's engagement. Nedda had been all summer deciding between two men, one "the catch" of the season, another a young chap with nothing to recommend but a very lovely personality.

I suspected she cared more for the latter, but having decided to marry the rich one, Nedda stubbornly maintained she cared more for him.

It was to be a very smart affair, and Win was looking forward to it, to meeting some particularly fashionable people.

It was the old game again, to be played as I play, to go into it whole heartedly. Win wanted me to look "smart," I did. I wore a gown of silver cloth that clung so low that even tightly, and was out so low that even Nedda was scandalized. I did my hair in an extreme style and wore heels that made walking a difficult art.

I smoked cigarettes until Win protested that I would ruin my health. And danced, and flirted and gossiped and laughed, and listened to inanities from fat gentlemen possessing many dollars and no brains.

"The beautiful Geraldine is not here tonight," my father remarked once.

"No, have you heard? They say the Marsdens are going to be married. Nedda chimed in her sweet face, trying a cherubic smile while she gave us a new piece of gossip. "Oh, haven't you heard? Oh, nothing much—a mysterious woman and two people lost their way on a back road, taking refuge in an obscure mountain inn—the usual thing. Odd, our Gwen could not have done it in a more original fashion!"

"But I thought you liked Gwen," I protested, shocked for once out of my wonted worldliness.

"I adore her," Nedda answered. "Still, if she will get lost when mortifying that isn't true," Win cried suddenly.

and $500 for clothes!" the judge asked Mrs. Haggerty when the court room was again quiet.

"Yes, but who hasn't? Any shop girl, my maidservant must spend two or three times that amount in a year for clothes."

"I wonder," said the judge, "if she earns it taking care of Haggerty's maids."

Three women witnesses supported Mrs. Haggerty's testimony. When it came time for the husband to take the stand, the judge leaned forward in sharp interest.

"My wife is amply supported," Mr. Haggerty declared, "but she has had her judgment distorted out here in movieville. She came from a small Kansas town. It was too sudden a jump."

On top of that my job as "fixer" unsettled her. You see, judge, when our company wants railroad trains, a skyscraper, a battleship or a pet rhinoceros to use in pictures, why it's up to me to get them. They call me "the great provider" out on the movie lot, and my wife probably figures I could produce fur coats and limousines and mansions and butlers just as readily for her as I do for the pictures.

"But I don't like to carry my business into my home. As a husband I never want to be loved because I am a Santa Claus, or an Aladdin with a magic lamp. My wife testified truthfully about my salary. Most of it goes into the bank for those future days when movie salaries will not be so large. What she has been getting for personal expenses I consider reasonable. Unless you order otherwise, and if she returns to me without a divorce, I intend to reduce her allowance by one-half."

There was intensity in his voice. The judge still leaned forward. "The defendant is quite in the right," he said slowly. "Testify dismissed."

A GOOD MAN GONE.

"I've just heard of a poor bootlegger who lost a flourishing business and died of acute alcoholism."

"A bootlegger, you say?"

It was a conscientious fellow and tried to serve his patrons with the best "moonshine." After a while he got to selling stuff he wasn't afraid to drink himself. "Birmingham Age-Herald."

People expect me to dress well.

nesses here will tell you I have borrowed money to pay my modest, my milliner, my hairdresser and my maid's lamp. And I still owe these sums. Last year he gave me only $500 for such expenses."

A wave of pathetic "Oh's" that was not without a note of regret for the lack of fetid grace in the testimony swept the courtroom. The judge angrily rapped for order.

"You have plenty to eat, shelter

After the war Crawford drifted west and became a miner in the Black Hills of South Dakota. When the Black Hills range was organized to protect the miners from hostile Sioux and bands of highway robbers, Jack was chosen chief. In one night he killed three desperadoes.

At the outbreak of the Sioux war in 1876 Captain Jack enlisted as a scout and rose to the position of chief of scouts for the Fifth cavalry. After the battle of Slim Buttes, S.D., where Chief American Horse was killed, Captain Jack, who was also a correspondent for the New York Herald, gave the world the first story of this fight. Crawford rode to Fort Laramie, 350 miles away, in three days and a half, outriding five relays of couriers, but he killed two horses doing it.

During the Apache wars in Arizona Crawford was again in the saddle as a scout for Gen. Edward Hatch. In 1881 he took the trail of the notorious chief Victorio after a scout of 16 days, located his camp in the Canchalis mountains in Mexico. As a result of his news, Victorio's camp was attacked by Mexican troops and his warriors were killed.

When the Indian wars were over, Captain Jack began writing down the verses which he had recited to his comrades around many a campfire on the Indian campaigns. He went on the lecture platform and in a short time the "Poet-Scout" was one of the best known of the old-time scouts in the country, second only to his old comrade of the Fifth cavalry, Buffalo Bill. In a little over a month after Buffalo Bill's death, Captain Jack followed him on the Long Trail. He died in New York Feb. 28, 1917.

STATE INSPECTION BRINGS BIG PRICE

Wisconsin Potatoes Are Favored on Chicago Produce Market.

Madison—Wisconsin potatoes are bringing higher prices than those of surrounding states on the Chicago market this year because of state inspection, the department of agriculture announces, following receipt of sales reports. These show the "Badger product" for the first time has brought the top price.

The department has figures to show that prices paid for Wisconsin potatoes are higher and that shippers are having more success in satisfactorily disposing of their product this year than before the inspection orders went into effect. It says a great deal of the objection to the grading and inspection regulations comes from dealers or growers who desire to get rid of potatoes which are below the standard without informing the purchaser of the fact. The purpose of the law, according to department officials, is to prevent misrepresentation or concealment.

Several dealers who favor inspection point out, the department says, that unless there is grading, unscrupulous competitors will accept potatoes of inferior quality and also in order to get business. This competition, which is declared to be practiced by traveling buyers from outside the state, is considered a detriment to the established warehousemen who are upholding the Wisconsin standard.

There is said to be a feeling in some sections of the state that the $2.50 per ton price is an added burden on the farmer. The department says this is without basis, because the charge represents only one third of a cent on each bushel.

Letters received by the department from railroad companies are said to indicate that the carriers appreciate the importance of the state inspection certificate in furnishing evidence of the grade of the potatoes shipped and of the condition of the car, in case of accident or delay in transit or other liability on the part of the railway company.

PURE BRED STOCK AT BOTTOM PRICES

Prize Holsteins of Green County. Average, $161 to $175.

Further evidence of low prices on pure bred cattle is indicated by successful bids during the two day sale of the Green County Holstein association at the fair grounds in Monroe. As in the Janesville Shorthorn sale buyers demanded the best stock, being concerned with building up and developing their herds.

On Wednesday the first day of the sale the average price was $104 for the 40 animals sold. On Thursday the average was raised to $175 for the entire sale. The total sales for the first day amounted to $7,889. The top price was $335 for "Jessie Parthena, Homestead" purchased by Charles Oby, Maple Lake. Mr. Oby, Henderson, Elkhorn, bought the second highest priced cow for $325 and the third highest for $315.

There was a good crowd attending the sale. Buyers from the Green county auction were in Rock county to the end of the week looking over the black and whites in this district to make up carload lots to ship out of the state.

Are Prices Down?
Are prices coming down to where the farmer can buy more than his bare necessities?

When two members of the agricultural staff of the University of Wisconsin, who own and operate Dane county farms were asked that question, both pointed to the necessity for every effort to reduce the cost of manufacture and distribution of articles used upon the farm.

K. L. Hatch, assistant director of agricultural extension service of the state, feels that prices paid for farm products are still proportionately much higher than are the prices paid to farmers for farm products.

E. H. Hibbard, agricultural economist, says the indication of a relief in the farm situation with respect to the balancing of accounts. By experience and observation he has found time and again that prices of farm products are rapidly on things which the farmer has to buy as on those things which he sells.

There are not many Wisconsin farmers who depend upon the sale of grain for any part of their annual income. This, according to Mr. Hibbard, is particularly true throughout the whole dairy district since almost no dairy farmer sells grain. More than half the dairy farmers are in the dairy district.

As a matter of fact, Wisconsin farmers are in very much better shape than those in the corn belt. They have not gone into debt for food and clothing. They have not had to pay for a very large part of their expenses and hence are not bankrupt. On the other hand a very large part of them are undoubtedly finding it difficult to meet obligations.

Many of the potato growers are not worried about a potato shortage this winter. There are lots of them, declares J. G. M. Ward, potato specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

But the price is probably as low now as it will be this year. Poor storage facilities are forcing many farmers to market their crops now and this is keeping the price down. The nation's crop is slightly lower than normal, but there are enough for all without scolding.

Mr. Milward reports the quality of Wisconsin potatoes especially good this year. In spots the quantity has been good also.

RAIL LABOR FACES VITAL DECISIONS

Harding Expects Public Opinion to Back Board Edict on Strike.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.
Washington—Railroad labor faces decisions far more vital to its welfare than cuts in wages if a strike should be called in defiance of the edict of the United States railroad board.

Having in mind all eventualities, the administration is canvassing the alternatives in the event that a strike should be persisted in after the railway labor board has done all that it can to adjust the controversy. For the fact is the Esch-Cummings law which created the labor board did not provide penalties for violations of its decisions. President Harding hopes that public opinion will provide the penalty—that recourse to the courts will be unnecessary. Needless to say, that would be a solution more in harmony with the wishes of the president than any other. That's why he dismisses as premature all proposals which take into consideration a possible violation by the unions of the mandate of the railway board.

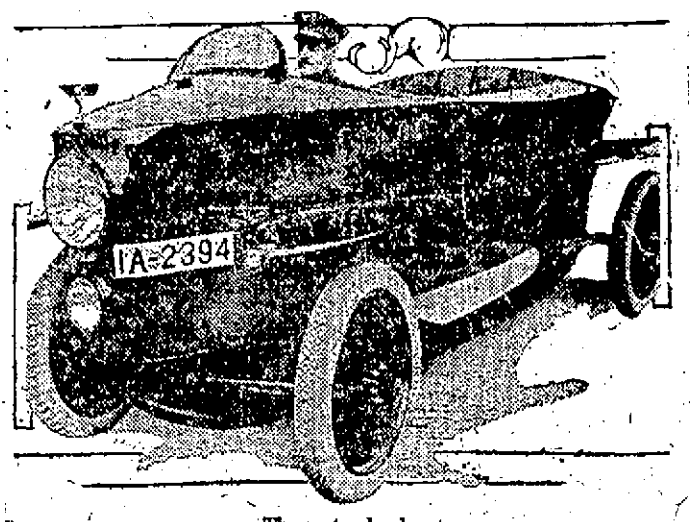

Amendment to E-C Law.
Nevertheless, there is a well-considered administration quarter which recognizes that some kind of a policy must be pursued if, indeed, public opinion does not compel respect for the federal authority. That policy unquestionably will be an amendment to the Esch-Cummings law imposing fines and imprisonment on all persons convicted of inciting strikes or lockouts in defiance of the decisions of the United States railway labor board.

Such a drastic step is inevitable if a strike should be called. When congress had under consideration an anti-strike clause last year, as a part of the Esch-Cummings bill, the senate voted in favor of it. The influence of organized labor defeated the clause when the bill was in conference between the two houses and it was omitted from the law. There was no psychological comfort to be gained from the fact that the senate had adopted such a provision when no strike was imminent and the matters discussed were purely hypothetical. What would be the attitude of congress as a whole when the nation's food supply and transportation of commodities were seriously held up by a country-wide strike on the railroads?

STATE HIT HARD BY HOG CHOLERA

Outbreaks Reported at Fifty-Two Points—Appeal Made to Farmers.

There is a serious outbreak of hog cholera in 52 Wisconsin points, including Rock county. The department of agriculture in Madison is appealing to all swine breeders for cooperation in an effort to break the disastrous outbreak of cholera that seems imminent.

Heavy losses have been caused in Rock county and also in Kenosha, Racine, Waukesha, Dodge, Walworth, Grant, Dane, and northern sections during September and early October.

The department of agriculture says that excellent results obtained in controlling cholera through proper use of serum and virus seems to have caused stock men in many communities to consider the disease practically eliminated. There is grave danger that this attitude may result in a general outbreak, causing great loss to the live stock industry, the report declares.

When cholera appears it must be presumed that it has been carried to the hogs from some other infected farm, according to the agricultural department, since there is said to be no other way in which the disease can be carried. Precautionary measures are therefore advised to guard against spread of the disease from outside areas.

Vaccination and confinement of infected animals to distant parts of the farm are recommended, as well as dipping and spraying. An early diagnosis is the only hope of preventing a heavy loss, the department says, advising that an experienced veterinarian, or official of the department, be called as soon as symptoms of cholera appear.

CRIPPLE LAYS OUT PLAYGROUND TO HEAR CHILDREN'S VOICES

Medway, Mass.—Elmer L. Videtto, a veteran of the civil war, crippled and party blind, has laid out a playground near his home here so that he may listen to the voices of children.

For years Videtto visited the schools, and told the pupils war stories. When after the most recent of several accidents he was obliged to give up active work as a stonemason, he conceived the idea of bringing children to him. He purchased land across the street from his home, and although the infirmities of 75 years and his injuries made the work slow, he cleared away the underbrush and built seats, swings and sliding boards for his child friends.

Here the children gather each day while Videtto sits on the veranda of his home or minutes with them to tell again the stories they love to hear.

TEACHERS TO SEE FREE CHEST CLINIC
Rock county teachers attending the State Teachers' convention in Milwaukee, November 3, 4, and 5, will have opportunity of seeing the free chest clinic to be conducted by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. Valuable medical information will be given the teachers, the tuberculosis association taking this means of showing appreciation for the active part of the teachers in the Christmas seal sales each year. The clinic will be held on the second floor of the Auditorium building.

ICE CREAM—THE FOOD

Do you know of any other dish that is so universally liked as ice cream?

It makes no difference how it may be used—as a dessert—as a cool and delicious delicacy, just for coolness sake—or as a staple article of food—now, honestly, do you know of any other dish that "takes the cake" with every class, with every age, with every nationality—with EVERYBODY—as ice cream does?

"We'll look into the question of the food values of ice cream a little—we'll forget that it is a frozen dainty—we'll remember only that we are eating a truly animal diet factor."

One quart of ice cream has the same food value as one pound and a half of round steak.

One quart of ice cream has the same food value as one dozen and a half eggs.

It has the same food value as four pounds of potatoes or one gallon of oysters.

That's just ONE QUART of ice cream, remember, one single quart—think of it.

But, substantial as ice cream is as a food it is one of the easiest of all food factors to digest—and every particle of it is digested and assimilated by the system. Ice cream, like milk, is 100% digestible and absorbable by the body. That's one reason why it is so extremely economical as A FOOD.

For the noon-day luncheon there is nothing better than ice cream. Particularly does this apply to the person of sedentary habits. Ice cream satisfies and nourishes. It is easily digested. It does not cause that "loggy" feeling during the afternoon, when you say: "Oh, I'm not worth a cent this afternoon! I feel so dull."

The blood cannot be called to the stomach for heavy digestive duties and also to the brain for thinking purposes—not at the same time. Remember this—try ice cream luncheons for a few days and see how clear and vigorous and capable you feel during the rest of the day.
